EXPIRES WHILE COMING NORTH

Wesley Bell Formerly Employed at the Rockingham Dies on Train.

Word was received here this morning of the sudden death of Wesley Bell, who for some time was employed as a bell boy at the Rockingham and was well known in this city. The message stated that Bell was en route from the South to Washington and was found dead in his sleeping berth. The body is at Washington awaiting some word from his relatives.

CADILLAC RESCUES FIRE TRUCK STALLED IN THE SNOW.

Heavy snow-falls throughout New York State have created many transportation difficulties and not the least serious have been those encountered by fire apparatus in responding to alarms. On some occasions even the powerful motor trucks have been stalled in the snow banks and have required outside assistance.

A spectacular incident of this nature occurred recently in Binghamton. A 10,000-pound combination motor fire wagon in responding to an alarm got stuck in a knee-deep snow drift and never did get to the fire. Fortunately the fire did not amount to much and so the results were not disastrous, but the problem of getting this truck back to the fire house remained.

Chief Hoag, however, came to the rescue. The chief drives a Cadillac, built on a regular chassis but with a special semi-tonneau body. He backed his car up to the truck, put extra weight in the tonneau to get traction, then hooked on to the truck. A start was made and the small truck moved slowly at first, but soon got under way. It was towed three blocks to a car track where it was able to move under its own power.

The Binghamton fire department has two Cadillacs in service. One has been in constant use for five years. The other was bought four months ago.

LANDMARK WILL REMAIN

Portsmouth Stone Will be Located on Vaughan Street, a Few Feet From Old Site

Public and historical sentiment has prevailed and the "Portsmouth Stone" which has stood at the junction of Congress and Vaughan streets for upwards of one hundred and ten years will remain at that point. The widening of the street at this point necessitated its removal and it was said to be the intention of the head of the street department to remove the stone to some other location in the city.

Mayor Harry B. Yeaton and other persons who still retain a loyal interest in their native city at once entered a vigorous protest against the removal of the stone to any other part of the city and this protest has been heeded and the old stone which has stood so many years at this point will be placed on Vaughan street only a few feet away from its present location. This will be pleasing news to all who desire Portsmouth to retain its ancient landmarks which are so greatly admired by the visitors from the south and west during the summer months.

This is not the first time that an attempt has been made to remove the stone, and met with opposition according to a well known citizen who is well posted on all local events.

CASHED WORTHLESS DRAFT

Dover Business Man at Navy Yard Looking for Sailor Who Obtained Money Under False Pretenses

Private Detective Bert Wentworth and George I. Leighton of Dover were at the navy yard on Monday in an endeavor to locate a sailor who had obtained $5 from Mr. Leighton under false pretenses. They however were unable to locate the guilty party. Mr. Leighton keeps a hotel and lunch room in Dover, and it is claimed that the sailor tendered him a draft on the United States government for $25. Mr. Leighton was skeptical about paying the whole amount but gave the man, who gave his name as George Clark $5, intending to give him the balance in the morning after he had cashed the draft. The draft, when presented for payment was declared worthless and Mr. Leighton began to look for Clark, who however had disappeared.

ALLEGED HORSE THIEVES CAUGHT

Charged With Stealing Horse of Ray Pike of Brentwood in 1909.

The Rockingham county authorities have been notified of the capture of the persons who are charged with stealing a horse from the pasture of Ray Pike in Brentwood in 1909. The animal is the property of Mr. Pike. They were arrested in Derby, Conn., on a charge in that state. Robert Scott, a deputy sheriff, was notified. The prisoners are Joseph and Hiram Brown, alias Brownfield. They were arrested by officers in Georgetown, Mass., but escaped before they could be secured by the Rockingham county officers. Both were indicted at the October term of the superior court held in Portsmouth. County Solicitor Ernest L. Gaffill will doubtless make arrangements to have them before the court which sits here on April 21.

TALK ON PALESTINE.

Mrs. William Barry Tells of Her Sojourn in That Land.

Mrs. William Barry of Kennebunk gave a very interesting talk on her sojourn in Palestine before the South Parish Alliance of the Unitarian church at the chapel on Court street this afternoon at 3.30.

Although the inclement weather hindered a large number of people from attending, there was a good audience, who were very appreciative.

Mrs. Barry spoke in an informal way, which was delightful and her discourse was most helpful to the interested audience, which embraced Sunday School and Missionary Workers, teachers and students. A great many wished that they could have had her experience.

MOVED TO HOSPITAL.

Caleb N. Lord of Howard street, a well known printer, was removed to the Portsmouth Hospital today for treatment for pneumonia.

WILL NOT SEEK ANOTHER TERM

Gov. Felker, However, Intimates that He is a Candidate for United States Senator

Governor Samuel D. Felker announced yesterday that he will not seek a re-election next fall. Meanwhile, in Concord yesterday, it became known, although it is yet to be officially announced that Secretary of State Edward N. Pearson is going to become a candidate for the Republican nomination to the United States senate. According to report, Mr. Pearson will run whether Jacob H. Gallinger, the present incumbent, seeks re-nomination or not.

Governor Felker showed by his conversation yesterday that he would like to see Frank P. Carpenter of this city enter the race for the Democratic nomination for governor, and it, and he eluded.

Regarding his own course he said: "I will not run for governor again. I believe in giving some other fellow a show."

The talk then turned on Democratic probabilities for the governorship with Albert Wellington Noone of Portsmouth and John C. Hatchins of Stratford being mentioned as prospective candidates.

"Hatchins wants the nomination and Noone wants the nomination," said the governor. Then he put the query:

"How about Frank P. Carpenter of Manchester? I wonder if he couldn't be induced to run?"

In what followed Mr. Felker plainly showed that he considered Mr. Carpenter would make an ideal candidate if he would enter upon a campaign for the Democratic nomination and that there would be every likelihood of his winning both nomination and election.

The governor considers that Senator Hollis is lending every assistance to the boom launched in behalf of Stevens for United States senator, but it does not seem to disturb him.

His inquiries and comment plainly showed that he is going after the nomination with a view of winning and that he holds the opinion Samuel D. Felker of Rochester stands a good chance of succeeding Jacob H. Gallinger in the upper branch of congress.

Governor Felker recently caused the appointment of Mr. Carpenter whom he now booms for the governorship, to membership on the board of trustees of the Boston and Maine railroad who were selected to take over the business of that system and to straighten out its affairs.

Mr. Carpenter's name is not a new one in connection with high office at the gift of the Democratic party. Although not by any means a political seeker he has been mentioned heretofore for governor and senator.

Mr. Carpenter is a native of Chichester and is 60 years old. He has lived here for 500 years and was formerly a member of the police commission, appointed twenty years ago as the minority member. He is a director of the Second National bank, the New Hampshire Fire Insurance Company, the Amoskeag Mills, the Columbia Water Power Company of Columbia, S. C., the Burgess Sulphite Fibre Company of Berlin, the Consolidated Cotton Duck Company and the Hanover Fire Insurance Company of New York city.

Mr. Carpenter is a son-in-law of the late Artemus Blood who died one of the wealthiest men in the state 17 years ago. Since then he has controlled the Blood estate.

He is a prominent member of the Franklin street Congregational church and a philanthropist on a larger scale than any man in the state. At present he is building a library for the city at the civic center to be known as the Carpenter-Memorial library.

Mr. Carpenter belongs to the conservative wing of the "Democratic party." A year ago during the senatorial deadlock his name was brought forth as that of a compromise candidate upon which the conservatives of all parties could unite in opposition to Henry P. Hollis.

SHE WILL GET ONLY $100

Cannot Collect More for Her Baggage Destroyed by Fire.

The practice of railroads limiting their liability for baggage to $100, unless a greater value is declared by the passenger has been upheld by the supreme court at Washington as valid under the Hepburn rate law, even though the passenger has not personal knowledge of the limitation.

This decision was in the decision of Mrs. Katherine Blocker of Los Angeles, Cal., against the Boston and Maine railroad for baggage destroyed by fire at the Lake Umbagog station in New Hampshire in 1908. The lower courts allowed a judgment of $1,235.94 the true value of the baggage. Under the supreme court's decision today she will be able to recover only $100.

"This decision varies very much from anything of the kind ever decided by this court or any other court," said Justice Pitney in a dissenting opinion.

The supreme court's decision today included none of the important railroad rate cases.

EVERHARDT DEFEATED LANGIER IN FAST MATCH

Bob Everhardt defeated Hans Langier a big German wrestler at Freeman's hall on Monday evening in two straight falls. Langier, who wrestled Burns here last year and gave a good account of himself, was substituted for Ernest Wilderman, who was injured on Saturday while training. Everhardt was outwitted considerably, but he won at the big German at the start. The German is a rough wrestler and Dryden who was refereeing had his hands full, making him play fair. His rough tactics did not seem to bother Everhardt, who is a very crafty ring general, and he kept out of harms way until he saw the proper opening, which came at the end of 17 minutes. Fast work and a hammer lock and arm bar pinned Langier to the mat. The second bout went but fourteen minutes and again Everhardt showed his superior skill and threw his man with a full body. At the conclusion of the match Dryden announced that he was seeking to arrange a match between Everhardt and Cyclone Burns for April 29. Everhardt was willing to meet Burns and is confident that he can throw him.

THE SOUTHERN CROSS STILL UNACCOUNTED FOR

St. Johns, N. F., April 6.—No trace of the missing sealer Southern Cross has been found by the steamship Kyle sent out in search of her by the Government. The commander of the Kyle reported by wireless at noon that he had been steaming all night and this morning, and although the weather was fine and clear he had sighted nothing to indicate the fate of the Southern Cross.

At the time of sending this dispatch the Kyle was 50 miles southwest of Virgin Rocks.

Terrible Scenes at Morgue

Attendants at the Greenfield Institute, which was turned into a morgue, said that the scenes accompanying the identification of the bodies were almost beyond endurance. One woman found two bodies clasped so tightly in death that they could not be separated. They were her husband and son. A gray-haired mother, supported by her two daughters, passed down the long rows looking for her sons. The attention of the attendants was suddenly drawn to them when the woman fell to the floor in a faint. They had found not only the four sons and brothers, but two cousins among the dead. Of the thirty survivors in the hospital, none is expected to die, but the majority will never be fit for active service again. Three lost both hands and both feet, five lost both feet, eight others lost a foot and a hand, and one lost all the fingers of both hands.

Some veterans among the hunters told of the desperate straits to which they were driven to save themselves. There was no protection on the open ice floes from the penetrating Arctic gale, so, ripping open, with their knives the bodies of the seals they had slain just before the storm broke, they saved themselves from death by removing the entrails and burying their hands and hands in the stomachs. Others sought shelter behind the bodies of dead shipmates, hiding from the wind.

The horror of the experience on the ice failed to depress the spirits of Mike Sheehan, one of the survivors, who, though his hands and feet were frost-bitten, eluded his caretakers, met a few friends and tramped about the city for two hours, while the police and hospital orderlies searched for him. When he was located he was sent to the hospital. He refused to go in an ambulance, and a cheering crowd followed him as he marched up the street, limping badly.

Two chums, Williams and Ryan, sworn friends, ordinarily quarreled when one of them wanted to give up and the other wouldn't let him. They clinched, and in their wrestling rolled into the water. Rodgers, a shipmate, hauled them both back on firm ice and they rose to their feet, but Williams, with a shiver, dropped dead, and Ryan collapsed shortly afterward.

Fully 10,000 persons lined the street last night when the dead were borne to the special train by relatives from

The figurehead of the U. S. S. Lancaster, one of the largest and most elaborate ever put on a vessel of the navy, was a notable example of his work. He was also prolific as an inventor, having taken out nearly 40 patents on various articles, some of which are today regarded as almost necessities of life. His carving shop at Kittery Point was for many years a favorite rendezvous for friends, and of whom recognized in John Bellamy a most entertaining companion, a wit and philosopher combined, and withal a man whose like is rarely to be met with. The funeral will take place from the First Baptist church on Wednesday at 2.30 p. m.

The Fire Company will give a whist party at Freeman's hall on Thursday evening. All are invited to attend.

APPEAR AFTER HONEYMOON

Woman Sought in Seigel Case Now a Bride.

Providence, April 6.—Mrs. Diana Edith Bddy, who has been sought for several days as an important witness in the Massachusetts investigation of the affairs of Henry Siegel, is again a bride and is passing her honeymoon in an endeavor to elude the police of three states.

It became known definitely today that she is now the wife of James Salisbury Brown, a young broker of Providence and Lowell. The wedding was performed Saturday at the Westminster Unitarian church in this city by the Rev. George B. Hathaway, and directly after the ceremony the bride and groom disappeared.

Efforts made by the police of Boston, Providence and New York failed to reveal whether the pair went. Atty. Henry S. Thayer, who represents Mrs. Brown's mother, a well-to-do resident of this city, said today that there was no need of the undue activity on the part of Mrs. Brown's legal pursuers. He said that he had been in touch with the newly married couple by long distance telephone and that Mrs. Brown would be willing to appear in Boston later and answer any and all questions that might be put to her by the Suffolk county attorney. He said, however, that the law must wait until after the honeymoon.

The bride, he asserted, will deny all the allegations made by Mrs. Henry Siegel in her brief for divorce and will maintain that her relations with Mr. Siegel were only those of an acquaintance.

Mr. Brown obtained his license to marry March 28, but it was not until Saturday that he made use of it. Mrs. Bddy came to this city just before the appointed day and took up her residence in the apartments of Mrs. Brown's mother at the Menden, an apartment hotel on Waterman street.

Saturday morning Mr. Brown, his fiancée and his mother breakfasted at the hotel restaurant and then went with a small party of friends in two automobiles to the church, which is in the Elmwood section, some distance from the center of the city. Among the witnesses were Mrs. S. Wilford Thayer, and Miss Alice J. Brown, sisters of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony the two cars were seen speeding towards the downtown section where they eluded pursuers. Since then none of those who are seeking the missing witness has been able to secure a clue to her whereabouts.

In taking out the license Brown said that he was a salesman and that he lived at 153 Merrimack street, Lowell, Mass. He gave his age as 31 years. The record shows that he was divorced October 29, 1913.

Mrs. Bddy confessed to 34 years and stated that she was born in Liverpool, England, the daughter of William D. and Diana Anderson. She gave her residence as Parkman street, Dorchester.

Brown is the son of the late James Brown, who was mayor of Pawtucket 15 years ago. The elder Brown was well known locally as the head of the James Brown Machine Company, which did a large business in Pawtucket. The family is reputed as wealthy.

Inspector Caffrey of the local police who has been assigned to the case was unable to furnish any information as to where the honeymooners might be. He has kept watch at the Menden since Saturday to see that nothing belonging to Mrs. Brown is spirited away.

The chief interest centres about a small trunk which she is said to have brought with her from Boston. Inspector Silas Waite of the Boston police has his eye on the trunk in the belief that it may contain some evidence that would be valuable in unraveling the case against Siegel.

He was expected this afternoon to ask for permission from the local authorities to investigate Mrs. Bddy's property, but nothing has yet been done in the matter. Inspector Caffrey said that there was no legal difficulty so far as he could see and that Inspector Waite might conduct his search at any time.

It is well known among the younger brokers in Boston and Providence. For some years after his graduation from college he was in the West. Returning, he lived for a time in Providence and then entered the employ of Stone and Webster and later that of Baker, Ayling and Company. While with the former firm he was stationed in Lowell.

Spaniards in El Paso Declare That This is the Source of His Hostility El Paso, Tex., April 6.—The Spaniards here who were driven out of Chihuahua and had their property confiscated are preparing to care for their countrymen. Houses are being rented for them and left buildings arranged as soup kitchens where philanthropic merchants will receive charity and where the women and children will be cared for until they can be disposed of among the Spanish colony here and in California. As there are more than 1000 Spaniards in Torreon and the Laguna district the influx is expected to extend over the week. The expulsion of the Spaniards was no surprise to the wealthy Spanish merchants who were driven out of Chihuahua by Villa. They claim that it is not Villa's alleged hatred for their race that is driving their countrymen from Mexico, but his love of loot. The Spanish merchants are the most prosperous in Mexico and the holdings of the Spanish colony in Torreon alone amount to more than $25,000,000 while the Laguna district has an equal amount of Spanish property. It is the great wealth the Spaniards here claim that caused Villa to issue his order.

PORTSMOUTH STONE SHOULD BE PRESERVED

Mayor H. H. Yeaton on Monday made a strong objection to the removal of the famous old Portsmouth Stone from the corner of Vaughan and Congress streets to the city yard, where it was found, when he noticed the matter.

The Board of Public Works are making a decided improvement at the corner of Congress and Vaughan streets, and this includes cutting away the corner at Lyman's store and, of course the stone post had to be removed and for want of a better place it was being consigned to the city yard, a few feet of its original site.

Miss Frances Bailey, who has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Bailey, returned on Monday at Plymouth to resume her studies at the Normal school.

TRAVERS AND HIS DRIVE

Golf, illustrated a British periodical, has the following:

Interviewed shortly after his arrival at Hoxlake by the Daily Mail, Mr. Travers confessed that he was not overmanaging his wooden club attentiveness so well as he desired. He traced these difficulties to an exaggerated swing developed in his early golfing days. He dismissed as exaggeration the reports that he got such a great deal of pleasure with his driving iron that wooden clubs were not a serious question. Mr. Travers proposes, remaining at Hoxlake for a fortnight.

The rain in the early part of the week rather upset Mr. Travers' practice. On Monday he was on the Hoxlake course quite early and waited long in a vain hope that the rain would cease. He walked about with a statement to the effect that the club was without debt and started the year under the most favorable circumstances. The course had come through the winter in excellent shape, and with warm weather it would rapidly round into form. The work on the third fair green was coming along excellent and the policy of the club for the past three years of making permanent improvements on each fair way would be continued. A new road will be built in from the road and this would be let out by contract. The membership of the club is increasing every year and with very few resignations owing to removal from town.

Mr. Walker, the chairman of the Easter ball committee reported that Paul's orchestra of Boston had been engaged and that the ball would be a very fine affair. The following concert program was approved: March, "Kaiser Friedrich". Friedmann Overture, "Marta". Flotou Excerpts (at "The Fire Fly"). Phoni (by "Tales of Hoffman"). Offenbach Medley Popular Airs. Remick Flute, "The Sunny South". Large

MAINE'S FAMOUS TEMPERANCE ADVOCATE IS DEAD

Portland, Me., April 6. Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, died today. She had been ill for several weeks with kidney trouble. Mrs. Stevens, who was born in Dover, Me., 70 years ago, continued to the last the temperance work to which she had devoted most of her life. Her mind remained clear, and late last week she was able to dictate correspondence in connection with the work of her office.

With her when the end came were her husband, Michael Stevens; her daughter, Mrs. Gertrude S. Leavitt of Portland, and Miss Anna Gordon of Evanston, Ill., vice president of the National W. C. T. U.

At conventions of the World's Christian Temperance Union at Geneva,

New York and Boston, Mrs. Stevens was vice president-at-large, presided in the absence of the president. Her ability as a speaker and worker for temperance first became widely recognized in the campaign of 1884, which placed the prohibitory amendment in the Maine constitution.

She had been president of the National W. C. T. U. since 1898. Several years ago she was awarded the honorary degree of master of arts by Bates College.

Mrs. Stevens last active work was a trip to Washington, last December, in the interests of the movement for a prohibitory amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Early in Temperance Work.

Mrs. Stevens was born at Dover March 1, 1844, the daughter of Nathaniel and Nancy (Harrison) Ames. She was educated at the Bancroft Academy, and was for some time a teacher. In 1867 she married Michael Stevens, a Portland business man. She was early interested in the temperance question, and in 1874 was one of the organizers of the Maine W. C. T. U. She was chosen treasurer, and served in that capacity until 1877, when she was chosen president and continued to serve by successive elections until her death.

She was elected a vice president of the National W. C. T. U. in 1894, and was one of the trusted lieutenants of Miss Frances B. Willard the then head of the White Ribbon movement. She early became identified with the woman suffrage movement and remained an ardent advocate of the cause as long as she lived. In 1898, after the death of Miss Willard, she became the acting president, and was the same year chosen her successor, and was annually reelected until her death. She was elected a vice president-at-large of the world's W. C. T. U. and several times crossed the ocean to take part in the deliberations of the international body.

She had charge, under the direction of Gen. Neal Dow, of the details of the campaign for the constitutional prohibition amendment in Maine, and was the acknowledged head of the fight to retain the amendment when it was resubmitted to the people in 1902. She had general direction of all the political work of the National W. C. T. U. and her influence was felt in many elections in the South and West.

She was one of the commissioners from Maine to the Chicago World's Exposition in 1893, and served on the board of managers and the same year was made the representative from Maine of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections.

Those who saw her in her home found her a good companion. She had traveled much and met many notable people and her recollection of men and women on both sides of the ocean was keen, and there was always a touch of the human nature element in her talk. She took a deep interest in the work for crippled children, and nothing aroused her more than to see a dumb animal abused. She was a member of the Universalist church.

She took an active part in the National and State work for women. Through her influence the birthday of Gen. Neal Dow became a recognized prohibition rally day, and in recent years her own birthday was recalled by Portland friends, who sent her flowers. During the closing years of her life she gave much time and thought to the temperance education of children in the public schools and was actively identified with the Young Women's Christian Association.

Mrs. Stevens was regarded as a good presiding officer, and was a trained parliamentarian. She is survived by her husband, her daughter, Mrs. Leavitt, and a grandson.

PRETENTIOUS RESIDENCE

Will Be Occupied by Episcopal Bishop of New York City Immediately After Easter.

New York, April 6. Bishop David H. Greer announced today that immediately after Easter he would occupy the new bishop's residence in the Cathedral Chase.

This house was built with funds of the New York diocese, and is by far the most pretentious residence occupied by any American Episcopal bishop. It compares with the palaces of bishops in England.

The principal business headquarters of Episcopal affairs in New York will be transferred at Easter to the cathedral, where Bishop Greer and the cathedral trustees will occupy offices in the new Synod Hall.

HISTORIC OLD KITTERY POINT

The following on Kittery Point appeared in the Portland Evening Express recently:

Rich in reminders of the prosperous Colonial times in New England is the southwesternmost corner of Maine, which bears the name of Kittery Point. There in the seventeenth century flourished the Brays, Peppers, and Sparhaws. Illustrations families whose influence dominated the social and business life of the region and continued until the outbreak of the Revolution.

The oldest dwelling standing there is the Bray house, built by John Bray in 1662. Bray came from Plymouth, Eng., and his industrious habits and energetic pursuit of business brought him wealth and the enjoyment of happiness in the new land.

The most famous of the Kittery mansions is the old Pepperell house, the home of the illustrious family on which Colonel William Pepperell was the head. William was born in Tavistock, Devonshire, Eng., in 1646. He was one of the earliest settlers of the Isles of Shoals, from where he became accustomed to make trips to Kittery Point on business. In his visits to the mainland he met Margery, the charming and beautiful daughter of John Bray. These two formed a friendship which ripened into affectionate regard for each other and this was what caused William Pepperell to move to Kittery Point so that he might be in a more advantageous position to press his suit with the head of the house of Bray for the hand of the fair Margery. John Bray thought well of Pepperell and the two names were united when William and Margery were married with simple ceremony in the commodious and elegantly furnished state parlor of the Bray house. The worthy couple shared the honor of founding the illustrious house of Pepperell.

A gently slight of hand near the Bray house was granted to Pepperell by his father-in-law and there the Pepperell house was built in 1682. This fine old Colonial mansion still stands as a mute witness to the lavish hospitality, luxuriosity and delightful social life of the early period of the wealthy families of southwestern Maine. There, Mistress Margery Bray Pepperell entertained many notable guests, clergymen, statesmen, soldier heroes, high officials of the colonies and distinguished visitors from Boston and England. To William and Margery was born a son, who became Sir William Pepperell, the great American baronet, famous as the hero of Louisbourg.

Although the family name has become extinct the Pepperell house has since been a noted landmark and object of interest to all who have thought of the early history of New England and the colonies. It is square and stately and substantially built, with gambrel roof and large windows which still retain the old fashioned small panes of glass. The gabled end of the house with its handsome doorway faces the main road but the large and hospitable front door opens upon a terrace garden which overlooks the broad ocean. In the large hall in which this front door opens was held when Pepperell was a magistrate. Many state and social functions were celebrated within the grand old mansion.

Col. William Pepperell died in 1733 and his son, Sir William became heir to the vast estates and business. For his valiant service in the brilliant military expedition the siege of Louisbourg, he was made a baronet by the King of England.

After his father's death, Sir William remodelled and enlarged the house and changed the style of its roof. To Sir William and Lady Pepperell, who was Mary 1891 of Boston, two children were born, Elizabeth, who married Nathaniel Sparhawk, and Andrew who was regarded as the heir to the estates and the man who should perpetuate the family name and the house of Pepperell. But Andrew died when a young man, shortly after the breaking of his betrothal to Hannah Waldo, daughter of General Waldo, who married Thomas Plucker, the royal secretary of the province, who lived in Boston until 1776. With the death of Andrew the great name of Pepperell became extinct.

But Sir William placed his hopes in William Sparhawk, his grandson, son of Elizabeth Pepperell and Nathaniel Sparhawk, and to whom he left the Pepperell title and estates on condition that he should take the name of Pepperell.

Sir William died in 1759 and William Sparhawk Pepperell, became the head of the house. But when the Revolution broke out he remained loyal to the king and the result was that the Pepperell estate became confiscated and were despoiled. All valuable movable property was taken to Boston by the government officials who were scattered far and wide. William fled to England, the mansion was sold and has since been occupied by strangers.

The marriage of Nathaniel Sparhawk and Elizabeth Pepperell took place in the old Pepperell mansion. Nathaniel built the old Sparhawk house at Kittery Point, which still stands, known as Sparhawk's Hall. There were born to this worthy couple four sons and one daughter. Nathaniel died in 1776 and Elizabeth lived 25 years after. Both are at rest in the old Pepperell tomb at Kittery. The interior of the Sparhawk house is one of the finest and most noted types of nearly perfect Colonial finish and design in existence in New England and it has been preserved just as it was when Sir William Sparhawk Pepperell fled the country at the outbreak of the Revolution.

There were five drums, one beggar, one for brawl, ten lodgers and an escaped prisoner on the police blotter last night. The last named was William Randall, who escaped some months ago from the County Farm.

The right of deportation is one provided for under the Mexican constitution, and has been exercised alike by the Huerta Government and the constitutionalists for alleged military or financial support of their enemies and for various other reasons.

TWENTY-NINE NATIONS TO TAKE PART IN FAIR

Washington, April 6.—To date twenty-nine foreign governments have signified their intention of participating in the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco next year. Notable absentees are two countries which heretofore have been most liberal exhibitors at all American expositions, namely Great Britain and Germany, but there is every assurance that even if the governments of those two countries do not relent at the last moment and recall their declaration, there will be thousands of British and German exhibits contributed by individuals.

Nine governments, including most of the great Powers, have signified their intention to send naval contingents to participate in the naval parade from Hampton Roads to the Golden Gate, via the Panama Canal, which is expected to equalize the opening of the exposition next February. Navy Department officials who are arranging the programme think this number will be increased at least three-fold before mid-summer. According to the present programme the international fleet is to gather in Hampton Roads early in January and sail in one long column about the end of that month for Colon to view a fleet that the season is usually inclement there is some talk of postponing the assembly of the fleet until early spring.

The appropriation bill providing funds for French official participation in the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco was among several hundred bills left on the calendar at the close of the sessions of the Chamber of Deputies, Gaston Doumergue, the premier, today expressed his determination however to press the measure to the earliest possible moment after the assembling of the new Parliament to be elected on April 25.

Official advices telling of the expulsion of the 600 Spaniards from Torreon by Villa were expected during the day. Until the Spanish Ambassador calls it to the attention of State Department officials here, here is little likelihood of any action by the Washington Government.

The United States itself has issued a warning to its own citizens to leave those parts of Mexico where military operations are being carried on, and has more than once intimated that other Governments might well take similar steps.

VILLA DRIVES SPANIARDS OUT OF TORREON

Washington, April 6.—The cancellation by the Huerta Government of the exequatur of American Consular Agent George C. Carothers, because he sent to Washington dispatches saying the rebels had taken Torreon from the Huerta forces, failed to disturb State Department officials today. The Huerta Government still denies Torreon has fallen.

Mr. Carothers obtained his exequatur when he was accredited to the Huerta Government and stationed at Torreon. Since the outbreak of the Carranza Revolution he has had a roving commission in Northern Mexico, and his exequatur from the Mexican City Government has been of little value to him, as all his denials were with the Constitutionalists.

It is the intention of the American Government to keep Carothers with Gen. Villa and the Constitutionalists leaders to make prompt representations for the safety of Americans and other foreigners, and to look after their interests generally.

No Exequatur Given to John Lind. Should Mr. Carothers find it necessary to go into territory controlled by the Huerta Government, he may now be unable to do business with its local authorities, but there is no prospect that he personally will be inconvenienced or prevented from making observations as an unofficial representative. Neither John Lind nor William Hayward held any exequatur while in Federal territory.

Official advices telling of the expulsion of the 600 Spaniards from Torreon by Villa were expected during the day. Until the Spanish Ambassador calls it to the attention of State Department officials here, here is little likelihood of any action by the Washington Government.

Credit Where Credit Is Due.

John D. Rockefeller, the oil king, has been pounded enough by press and public to be entitled to any credit that is due him, consequently there should be no withholding of recognition and appreciation when he performs an act of large interest and importance to the public. The institute of medical research founded by him some years ago has done, is doing and will continue to do, long after he and the rest of us are gone, a work of vast benefit to the American people and the human race.

And now Mr. Rockefeller has provided for the founding of an institution for the study of animal diseases, which will constitute a department of the institute mentioned. For this purpose he has given $1,000,000 and as soon as preparations can be completed the study of animal diseases will be entered upon by a corps of experts, whose work will be as scientific and thorough as that of the investigators of the diseases which afflict the human family.

The work of this institute will undoubtedly be of large financial value to the country, to say nothing of its humanitarian aspect, which must not be lost sight of, for the effort to check the ravages of disease and death among our domestic animals is most praiseworthy, altogether aside from the question of dollars and cents. And yet the money consideration involved is large. Tuberculosis among cattle is common in many parts of the country and the financial losses occasioned by this disease alone are heavy. Diseases of horses, hogs and other farm animals swell the losses sustained each year by the farmers, and indirectly by the public, to large proportions, and anything that will check this waste will be a public benefit and blessing. The loss in New York state alone from cattle tuberculosis amounts to thousands of dollars annually, and it is estimated that the losses from hog cholera in the country last year aggregated $60,000,000. James J. Hill, railroad magnate and student of affairs, contributes $50,000 to the new Rockefeller institute to aid in the investigation of this disease. The importance of this work cannot be overestimated and the public, with all its prejudices, will not withhold from John D. Rockefeller the credit to which he is entitled in this connection.

Just Keep the Navy Yard Matters Alive.

To the various correspondents who have sent communications to The Herald on the statement made at the last meeting of the City Government when a member took a fling at this paper. We haven't found space for them for we rather liked it coming from that source. The Herald is delighted and if it can continue to keep navy yard matters alive it will gladly take all the "knocks." If you want to "hit" some one take a crack at something that is alive. The Herald will continue to boost and shout for Portsmouth. The Herald appreciates the kind friends who have worked to its defense but it does not need it. The Herald is too busy with work to dignify such insignificant remarks with a reply. This statement is simply to acknowledge the receipt of the communications and why they are withheld. The people know their friends.

Some of those who are interested in the immigration question call for the barring out of persons of "constitutional Psychopathic inferiority," which it is claimed renders them liable to become insane under the stress of American life. It might, however, be difficult in many cases to designate such people. Many immigrants who appear to be of doubtful value stand the stress of American life admirably and get rich in a few years.

New York City is to celebrate the 350th anniversary of the birth of Shakespeare April 23, and among those who will serve on the committee of arrangements are several prominent citizens who served in a similar capacity in 1864, when the 300th anniversary was celebrated. Among these are Levi P. Morton, former vice president of the United States, Henry Clws, the banker, and Henry Holt, author and publisher.

The Princeton debating team is ready for practically all comers, but draws the line on suffragists. The members evidently feel that they would stand no show in a "talkfast" with the women.

There is a great crop of fruit in California, and the rest of the country will be heard from later in the season. This is a fruitful land and hunger is among its remotest dangers.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead, who never to his wife has said, "Your Easter hat is very becoming."—Boston Herald. Or, "Don't you look sweet this morning?"

WHAT THE NATION LOSES FROM MINE ACCIDENTS AND MINERAL WASTE

There is no exact measure of the losses from mine accidents and mineral waste, but we may use an approximate measure. If the increasing rate of coal mine fatalities during 1905, 1906 and 1907, the three years prior to the beginning of this work, had continued throughout the four subsequent years, since congress authorized these mine explosion investigations, the number of fatalities would have been at least 4,000 greater than they have actually been. At approximately the average compensation paid in fatal mine accidents of the past few years, this would represent a national loss of $12,000,000,000 in the four years. It is to be remembered that for every fatal accident there are at least three to five serious non-fatal accidents and twelve lesser accidents, which incapacitate for one or more days. It will be seen that the actual national loss expressed in money value would have been much greater.

In mineral waste the national loss is estimated to be not less than $1,000,000 a day. This loss for the most part is not such as may be considered as representing a deferred use of resources but represents a total permanent loss of national wealth.

The mineral losses are considered as national losses for the reason that the mineral products of the country, the becoming articles of interstate commerce, are used by the people of all the state quite regardless of their source. For the same reason the cost of intervention looking to the intervention of these losses should not fall upon our state; and if conducted by each of the states, the result would be extensive and unnecessary duplication of effort and expenditure. We cannot expect the individual operator to bear the cost of such investigations for the reason that waste prevention with him is a question of temporary profits, and his temporary profits in many cases at least are greater by virtue of his following wasteful methods. With both the community and the nation the situation is often quite different, and they must safeguard their own permanent welfare.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

Proclamation for Fast Day, By Samuel D. Felker, Governor

Reverence for the memory of the Pilgrim Fathers is not only a distinctive American privilege, but it is equally a duty. The pious purpose, the persevering courage, and deep religious faith of these good people challenge the admiration of the world. To some, in this more enlightened age, their religious zeal may seem to have been confined within narrow bounds, but they believed in a personal God, to whom they attributed all successes, and from whom they besought temporal blessings. In the piousness of the present age, we can scarcely realize the hardships they endured, nor appreciate their continued self-denial. "They that sow in tears shall reap in joy." In the midst of their trials and afflictions, they turned to Him from whom all blessings flow, and as the seed-time approached, appointed a day for humiliation, fasting and prayer, that the autumn should bring forth its fruits. Let us emulate their noble example. And in accordance with that custom, I do hereby designate Thursday, the 10th day of April, current, as Fast Day.

Upon that day, wherever we may be, let us remember that in our hearts was hidden the power which by perseverance and faith has produced the freedom of today, and may we seek the guidance of Almighty God for the preservation of that freedom and invoke His blessing upon all mankind.

Given at the Council Chamber in Concord this 27th day of March, one thousand nine hundred and fourteen, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and thirty-eighth.

SAMUEL D. FELKER,

By His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Council,
JULIUS W. N. PEARSON
Secretary of State.

MEETS WITH FAVOR

"The Punch" a four act newspaper drama, written by Walter L. Fogg and Harold P. Moulton, two Lynn newspapermen, was produced Monday evening for the first time by the Auditorium Stock Company. At the evening performance Lynn newspapermen guests of Manager Jones formed a part of the large audience. Mayor Newhall was host to the members of the municipal council. The piece is interesting. There are a number of parts which are decidedly creditable. The drama was finely staged and the settings added much to the value of the production.

ADVERTISERS GUARD PUBLIC

Declared to Be Greatest Force in Protection of the People From Fraud.

"The great body of advertisers in America is today one of the most substantial forces in protecting the public from fraud."

This tribute from Walter Dill Scott, professor of psychology in the Northwestern university, becomes tremendously impressive and indicative of the great work ahead when placed side by side with the astounding figures in the annual report of the postmaster-general.

The latter states that in the last two years, swindling promoters have obtained $100,000,000 by insidious advertising!

More than 4,000 cases, involving a fraudulent use of the mails, were investigated last year by the department inspectors; more than 1,000 persons were arrested; and hundreds were convicted.

All reputable publications are doing their utmost to protect the public from the snares of the dishonest advertisers. There are no two ways on this question of honesty—and there need be no splitting hairs over any visionary "fine points."

Clean, honest, wholesome advertising—advertising that benefits both the buyer and the seller—is easily recognizable. It is the only kind of advertising that is worth while and the only kind that you will ever find intentionally admitted to the columns of any publication of character.

TWO KINDS OF ADVERTISING

One Gives Some Facts That Will Draw Attention of People—Other Is Colorless.

Why advertising doesn't pay—how much the newspaper man could write along that line!

Here is an ad from some substantial house, in which the merchant says something like this: "Buy the best. It's the cheapest. Smith, Jones & Co., always have the best."

The reader on seeing that ad is thereby reminded that Smith, Jones & Co., always have the best."

The reader on seeing that ad is thereby reminded that Smith, Jones & Co. are alive. It is as far as it goes. But he says to himself, "They all claim that," and the notice makes comparatively little impression.

Another man, say a shoe dealer, publishes a notice something like this: "Best quality Brown, Johnson & Co.'s women's kid shoes, hand sewed, oak tanned soles, solid throughout, patterns and lasts never shown previous to May, 1913. Price $3.25."

When your women readers find an ad written something after that style, it strikes them that for some good reason there is a chance to save a dollar. If they have any intention of buying such an article in the near future, they are interested to go in and look at the goods. A moderate sized notice of that kind will pull more trade than a larger display with no logic or facts in it.

For Church Advertising. "Had the newspaper existed and been the factor in their day that it is in our day, Christ and the disciples would have used it to the fullest extent," were words uttered by Rev. John Wellington Hoag in a sermon at the Calvary Baptist church, New Haven, Conn.

The theme under discussion was "Making the Church Known," and in his remarks Mr. Hoag paid the above tribute to the power of the newspaper. Added interest is created by the fact that Mr. Hoag is himself a great believer in the widest publicity, not alone for the commercial house, but for the church as well.

In the discussion of the theme Mr. Hoag stands at the head of the secular forces of modern life. The church, he said, that would adopt its ministry to the conditions of the age must avail itself of the services of the daily press. "This affords the best way of reaching the people and the church is not only warranted but practically compelled by the conditions of the age to use the newspaper in making known its work and in calling men's attention to it."

Publicity in Home Demanded. The importance of this whole question of publicity to the consumer is growing on the manufacturer. He sees his competitor or some man in another line turning the trick of publicity and he sits up and thinks. He is gradually realizing that localized, crystallized publicity in the home is what pays best and that he can only get that through the daily newspaper.

CURRENT OPINION

Future of Race Can Be Enhanced Only Through Character Building.

Individual endeavor and high ideals are the only things that will make better human beings. Ninety-nine per cent of what is commonly attributed to heredity has nothing whatever to do with it and is merely a matter of environment.

Scientists have run riot with the idea until they fail to distinguish between heredity, which comes from the inside, and inheritance, which, like a fortune, comes from the outside. Civilization is an inheritance pure and simple, not caused in the slightest degree by heredity.

Eugenics appeal to men who are morally long haired and to the women who are intellectually short haired. It is easier to talk of breeding improved human beings than to begin by improving oneself and training one's children. The future of the human race can be enhanced only through character building by individuals and courageous adherence to ideals by nations.—Professor A. L. Kroeber of Department of Anthropology, University of California.

that from what he had been told the stone had something to do with the old stage lines—was a mark for them to measure distances from or to, when they landed passengers at the Portsmouth stone they landed them in Portsmouth and that undoubtedly the stone was set up by the stage company.

The old Portsmouth stone is remembered by some of the older residents, who went to school at the academy, away back before the war as it marked the bounds which they were allowed to go at recess. Many of them recalled getting a ferrule for passing that bounds.

The Portsmouth stone was also a favorite test for the athletic abilities of the boys of forty and fifty years ago and when one could jump this post he thought he had reached the height of his ambition. Many of our well known business men still retain pleasant recollections of the Portsmouth stone and hope that it will remain as a landmark for another century to come.

PEOPLE'S OPINIONS

Editor Herald—

Says Forget It

A communication over the signature of "Observer" in The Herald of Monday is amusing. It is evident the writer either comes from the ranks of the active department or he is in sympathy with them, and is inclined to start something that will work hardships in the efforts of the veteran firemen to get the big New England muster.

He brings back the last local muster and takes a slap at the veterans for what happened on that day, placing all the blame on the shoulders of the Franklin Pierce Association. Which ever was to blame, the veterans have long ago forgotten that incident and why should the active department cherish revenge.

The veterans are now working for something to boom the city and this is not the time to be throwing cold water and bringing animosity to the surface. The jealous minded should be muzzleed and those inclined to do good, come to the front with all the help possible to aid the committee from the veterans in bringing the muster to Portsmouth, where $25,000 was spent by the enormous crowd that visited our city on the last occasion of this kind.

Boom Portsmouth, but do it without the hatchet and the hammer.

PROGRESSIVE.

FOURTH WEEK OF ENGAGEMENT

Amidst gales of laughter, melody, beauty of femininity and scenic embellishments, Kitty Gordon and her perfect supporting company have entered upon the fourth week of their engagement at the Cort Theatre.

Here is a comedy with music that to the busy business man can tersely be described as: "A Laugh or a Song in Every Minute." This merry entertainment is a classic as regards "Novelty" as it is entirely different from anything you have ever seen. The play tells a most charming, intensely interesting and highly amusing story, and likewise fairly revels in an Audin-like series of musical surprises all of which is topped with an excellence of cast which includes in addition to the lustrous Kitty Gordon, Charlotte Greenwood and Sydney Grant, who have likewise registered their hit of their careers. Harrison Hunter who was last seen in Boston as leading man for Helen Ware; Roy Atwell who created the leading comedy role in "Madame Trentino's 'The Firefly'"; Edward Merindell, formerly leading man of "The Naughty Marietta" Company; Lillian Tucker of "Madame Sherry" fame; James Gleason and the California Double Quartet.

THE FORD.

One of the features of the great machine shop of the Ford Motor Company that always impresses the casual visitor is the interminable—apparently impenetrable—jungle of shafts and belting necessary to operate the machines. In fact it is a source of wonder to the visitor how all these tremendous pulleys and miles of shafting get their driving power from the two big gas engines in the central power plant. One is not surprised when one is told that besides the big motors in the power plant driving the main shafts there are 720 others scattered about the factory driving outlying portions of the labyrinth of belts and pulleys.

MONTANA COMING.

The U. S. S. Montana, is coming to the yard on rush orders to have her above water torpedo tubes installed. This is along with Secretary Daniels' promise to send this ship here.

Miss Mabel Hadlow of New London, Conn., is the guest of friends in this city.

RAILROAD NOTES

Petitions are being circulated in Newport and Charlestown calling for earlier train service to Lake Umbagog on Sunday. This is to accommodate residents of these two towns who own cottages at the lake.

The bridges and buildings department of the Boston and Maine has started a crew on the preliminary work, preparatory to replacing the present wooden bridge, two miles north of Danbury, with a modern steel bridge.

The operating department of the New Haven road is experimenting with a new style of fusee having a crimped end which is proving a success on all divisions.

Estimated freight earnings for New Haven for March show a slight increase. Officials feel that this may perhaps indicate a change in conditions for the road. Passenger earnings show a decrease.

SECRETARY DANIELS ON NAVY YARD WAGES

If Employees Increase Cost of Work There Will be No Shipbuilding-- Overhead Charges Driving Away Work

Secretary of Navy Daniels, who recently met the committee from the machinists and toolmakers on the matter of more wages, gave some good sensible plain talk to the delegation, especially on work at navy yards.

While the secretary believes that government employees should be the best paid mechanics, he really asked the men to give him a chance to establish shipbuilding at navy yards and not to let the fact that the navy want to pay well be carried to such a point of increase that the cost of building at navy yards will exceed that of private concerns.

He stated plainly if such did happen the government will do no more building. Regarding the past and present quiet spell at some of the yards, he said he desired to keep the navy yard plants running and regretted the fact that many men had been laid off on account of the severity of work. This was due in a measure to the necessity of keeping ships in Mexican waters.

"We always have this problem and it is a great difficulty. The men employed in the yards are extremely anxious for us to build ships in the navy yards. That has been the situation for a long time, and I have underaken since I have been secretary to try and improve the situation. We are building battleship No. 39 in the Brooklyn navy yard. We have arranged to build a supply ship in the Boston navy yard, a transport in the Philadelphia navy yard, and a submarine in the Portsmouth navy yard, and we are building colliers in the navy yard at Mare Island. My idea is that wherever we can do so we ought to build in navy yards, not exclusively, but to maintain competition and not to permit the private shipbuilders to fix their own price. I have an idea that unless we do build, they will get together as, perhaps, they have done in more or less ways, and permit the price to go too high, but if we get out the plans of a ship and ask the navy yards to estimate and also the private companies, we then have competition between the government and the private companies. I think by that means we really get the best results."

The secretary also told the committee that the overhead charges at navy yards was driving work away from the department and he was with two of the ablest men in the navy making a careful study of it.

most capable companies seen in Boston in years headed by William Courtenay, who is kept in one of the best roles of his long stage career.

There will be an extra matinee on Monday, April 20th, Patrick's Day, in addition to the regular Thursday and Saturday matinees. Out of town playgoers should bear in mind the repeated announcement that this play will not appear elsewhere this season. Those who would enjoy a delightful evening's entertainment had better send in their order for seats. Make your check or money order payable to Fred B. Weight. It will receive prompt and accurate attention.

GAS CLAIMS NINE LIVES IN BRIDGE SHAFT

Nine Others Narrowly Escape in Memphis Accident— Bodies Found.

Memphis, Tenn., April 7.—Nine men were killed and nine others narrowly escaped death yesterday when a shaft leading to the underground workings on the foundation for the Harahan bridge, being constructed across the Mississippi here, became filled with poisonous gases.

All the dead were white men. Those rescued are negroes. Divers recovered the bodies.

The Dead.

Peter Watson, Liberty, Ind.

A. Winkler, Chicago.

John Clayton, St. Paul, Minn.

A. W. Johnson, Brooklyn.

T. J. Farrell, Kansas City.

Mike Burke, Providence, R. I.

Thomas Leonard, John King and Jack Powers, residence unknown.

The cause of the gas formation is unknown. One physician stated the bodies bore evidence of carbon-monoxide poisoning, which might have been formed through the burning of the oakum and rubber lining on top of the caisson.

Another surmise was that a deposit of "marsh gas" was penetrated in making the excavations.

The accident occurred about 100 feet inland on the Arkansas shore of the river. The first intimation those at the top of the shaft had that the men had been overcome was when no report came from the descending crew. Watson volunteered to go to their aid and was overcome while descending the shaft.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE

The great crowds that have attended the performance of Under Cover, which enters upon the 17th week of its engagement at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, during the Lenten season is conclusive evidence of the immense popularity of the piece and adds to the great number of tributes paid to this remarkable play.

In spite of the fact that the play will soon step into its fifth month here is as much, if not more, interest just now than ever. There is every reason to believe that the play will achieve a record run that in all likelihood will remain unbroken for years to come.

One has only to witness it to readily understand why it is the most talked of play in years. Roy Cooper Megraw, the author has succeeded in constructing a play unusual in its charm and interest. Under Cover, represents the highest phase of New York society life and would-be smugglers. It is replete with thrills, mystery and surprise, that keeps you intensely interested from start to finish. There is plenty of action in each act and the charm of the play lies in a delightful love story that runs as an undercurrent.

The play is staged by Selwyn and Company, who have paid careful attention to the smallest detail. The characters are essayed by one of the

SEC. DANIELS' NEW ORDER FAVORED BY SURGEON GENERAL

Washington, April 6.—Secretary Daniels' order banning the use of alcoholic liquors in the navy, effective after July 1 next, was generally discussed in naval and other circles here today. The order, one of the most sweeping ever communicated by the Navy Department, not only abolishes the traditional "wine mess" of the officers, but will bar all alcoholic liquors from every ship and shore station of the navy. Surgeon General Baileist recommended it after an exhaustive investigation into the problem. While declining to discuss for publication the effect of the order, naval officers privately expressed the belief it may fulfill its purpose—to prevent or decrease drunkenness within the navy. In effect, the order does no more than abolish the wine mess. No distilled spirits are sold in the wine mess—only wine and beer. Officers contend it is absurd to suppose that men ever become drunkards on beer or champagne. They express the opinion that the order will trespass their personal liberty and prevent their affording visitors for foreign navies the wines which they are accustomed to on their own vessels. The order was hailed with joy here today by the prohibition forces, who declare it will have a strong influence in the furtherance of the temperance cause.

When asked today to comment on the order, President Wilson said it was strictly a department matter. It is understood that the President was not consulted by Mr. Daniels before he issued the order, and no one professes to know whether it had the President's approval.

Officers Favored Over Enlisted Men.

While admitting that the old regulation conforms to the letter of the law, Surgeon General Baileist in his letter to Secretary Daniels, declared: "It may be an open question how far it fulfills those laws in spirit." He explained that the use of alcoholic stimulants was "inherited" with many outward customs at the very birth of the American Navy, and reviewing legislation of the subject he observed: "It must be clear that Congress has plainly set the stamp of disapproval upon the use of intoxicants by persons in the naval and military services."

"As matters stand today," wrote the surgeon general, "an enlisted man is very properly subjected to severe disciplinary measures if wine or beer be found in his possession on shipboard, yet the same man is constantly aware of the free use of alcoholic liquor on board ship, which is officially permitted to officers, and the too-frequent demerits which occur among them in consequence. The prohibition of alcohol to the men has rendered alcoholism among them almost a negligible quantity."

"Surely the officers should be in all respects models for the enlisted men in duty, habits and deportment, and the example of officers drinking aboard ship, as fostered by the whole mess, and the numerous courts-martial of officers for drunkenness and the effects of alcohol, are destructive of discipline and morals, bad for the enlisted men and detrimental to the reputation and good name of the service. The navy is comparable in many respects to a great business organization, but no efficient corporation in civil life would tolerate such a condition of affairs."

Declaring that restrictive measures already enforced meet with public approval and are based upon sound physiological principles, the surgeon general asked the question: "Why, then, are they effective for a part of a personnel, instead of applying with equal force to the whole?"

"It is difficult," he continued, "to enforce the law in spirit." He explained that the use of alcoholic stimulants was "inherited" with many outward customs at the very birth of the American Navy, and reviewing legislation of the subject he observed: "It must be clear that Congress has plainly set the stamp of disapproval upon the use of intoxicants by persons in the naval and military services."

FORCING HOME RULE TO A VOTE

London, April 6.—"I think in the present circumstances there is nothing for the House of Commons to do but proceed with the Home Rule for Ireland bill as it stands." This was the closing sentence of a speech delivered today in the House of Commons by John R. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, who made the final speech on behalf of the Nationalist party on the second reading of the Home Rule bill. The vote of the House on the measure was arranged to be taken tonight. The day's proceedings in the House were opened by Mr. Redmond, who pleaded that the present stage of the controversy was so critical that all energies must be devoted to facing a settlement of the realities. He continued: "The country as a whole is sick and tired of the Irish question, and it must be settled here and now."

Emphasizing that it was impossible for the Irish Nationalists by agreeing to the permanent exclusion of Ulster from the Home Rule bill to abandon the principle of "Ireland a nation," Mr. Redmond added: "The real question of the moment is how far each side is prepared to advance toward an agreement." The Nationalists, Mr. Redmond said, would have been glad to accept the scheme proposed by Sir Horace Plunkett in February, by which a plebiscite would be taken after a certain number of years on the question whether any section of Ulster desired to continue subject to the Irish Parliament.

Sympathy for Federation

Mr. Redmond said he was in sympathy with the general proposal of a scheme of Federation but vague talk on the subject, he declared, was misleading and could not solve the present difficulty. Amid great cheering on the ministerial side of the House Mr. Redmond then summed up his view of the situation saying that although he would not do or say anything to preclude the possibility of a fair and honorable peace he thought there was nothing else to do at present than proceed with the bill in its present form.

In the course of his speech Mr. Redmond said:

"The House of Commons owes it as a duty to Ireland and to England to pass the Home Rule bill and not to be deterred from doing so by threats of armed resistance. I am profoundly confident that when the bill has been once passed it never will be repealed. The change which has taken place during recent years in public opinion regarding Home Rule here will be reversed."

According to the Daily Mail, Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, will make a fresh bid for a compromise. He will suggest the exclusion of Ulster from the Home Rule bill until such time as the Federal system can be applied to all parts of the United Kingdom, when the whole question would be reconsidered. The Ulster Unionists are still favorable for a settlement by consent. The Unionist leaders and newspapers are agreed that they find nothing provocative in the speech made by Mr. Asquith at Ladybank Saturday and there is every evidence of a desire all round to find an acceptable compromise.

Rev. and Mrs. John Wesley of Watertown, N. H., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hodgdon of Woodbury avenue, during the conference returned to their home Monday, preparatory to taking their residence in Landoff and Seawater, where he has been transferred.

PURITAN AND THE SABBATH

Observance of Day of Rest Undoubtedly Necessary to the Nation's Well Being.

All forward looking minds must feel some apprehension for the mental, moral and especially the physical well being of the American people, as they see how the Sabbath is more and more given over to business and pleasure, declares the Universalist Leader. No nation can be strong unless it has a rest day every week; no man or community can be spiritually strong unless he or it sets aside and uses the Sabbath for worship of the unseen spiritual power that made and upholds the universe and its freight of life. Gladstone attributed much of his vigorous health to his long life to the fact that nothing, not even cabinet making, ever prevented him from attending church. The puritan in America gave the enduring moral fiber to our national life. His sabbatarianism was a portion of this might in him; he revered God, he mastered earth. A revival of puritan sabbatarianism would greatly benefit this land of ours. Modern civilization would, of course, make the old sabbath quiet, much different than it was in the primitive communities of three generations ago, but we are noisy about many needless things, sports that do not rest, amusements that do not recreate, business that does not yield a permanent profit. Consider the old adage: "The Sabbath is for works of mercy and necessity only." One phase of the puritan life has long appealed to us, the fact that so little cooking was done on Sunday. The Sunday meals were prepared on Saturday. The slave of the cook stove was manumitted on the Sabbath. Could we not imitate that custom and have simpler meals on the Sabbath, thus giving freedom to worship to our modern kitchen bondswoman, whether mother or hired servant?

GET SUGAR FROM SAWDUST

Chemically Prepared Material Found by Scientists to Be Valuable Food for Animals.

In the course of a paper read before the London Royal Society of Arts, A. Zimmerman described a process by which sugar might be manufactured from sawdust.

In its natural state, he pointed out, says London Tit-Bits, wood contains no sugar, but when subjected in closed retorts to digestion with a weak sulphurous acid solution under pressure of six to seven atmospheres a very remarkable transmutation takes place, as much as 25 per cent. of the material being converted into sugar. In this Mr. Zimmerman claims that we have a valuable feeding stuff for horses, cattle and sheep.

Draft horses in whose daily ration four pounds of "cacchulose-molasses" were substituted for four pounds of oats were kept under observation for seven months and were all found to have increased in weight, while a colt which was in so weak a condition that veterinary surgeons advised its destruction put on 260 pounds in six months and is now in excellent condition.

Attorney Frank F. Fernald of Dover was a visitor here on Monday.

TO ELIMINATE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN CAPITAL AND LABOR

Washington, April 6.—With prominent representatives of employers and employees as witnesses, the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations instituted today what promises to be one of the most exhaustive investigations ever undertaken by a Federal body, with a view of eliminating as far as possible of differences between capital and labor.

Members of the commission of which Frank P. Walsh is chairman, said today the investigation would continue four days and would cover every phase of the various industries scheduled for hearings. Following the conclusion of its work here, expected Thursday, the commission anticipates a visit to the principal industrial centers of the country to continue hearings.

Chairman Walsh proposed to devote today's hearing primarily to the coal mining industry. Following the representatives of the iron molding industry will be heard.

The program for the remainder of the hearings includes the following industries, trades and labor organizations, representatives of which have been requested to testify: Tuesday morning, clothing; Tuesday evening, printing trade; Wednesday morning, the building trades; Wednesday afternoon, railroad officials and employees.

The final session will be devoted to testimony on the subject generally, without reference to particular industries, and the witnesses will include Sec. of Labor Wilson, Pres. Sagner, Comptroller of the American Federation of Labor, C. P. Neill of New York, United States Commissioner of Labor, Judge W. C. C. Chambers of the United States Court of Conciliation and Mediation; Louis D. Brandeis, Boston, attorney, and other witnesses.

GETTING IN

Calls on President Wilson Limited. Dropping in to see the President and having a chat with him isn't nearly the popular pastime here that it used to be. And as for going to the White House and telling your troubles—well, it simply isn't done. Most of the folks about these times now can't even remember when that practice was in fashion. Getting in to see the President nowadays is an operation that has been put on the efficiency basis and that has the nicety, skill and precision in operation of the time tables of the planets. And as for seeing the President without having any legitimate business with him, why, that is a privilege reserved exclusively to Cabinet officers and Senators, and they are having more and more difficulty all the time in exercising it.

Mr. Roosevelt, when he was President, saw everybody and anybody. The whole world filed through his ante-room and inner office. To see the President in his day one needed to bare only the desire. He was a marvel at receiving and dispatching visitors. One man who had the experience on a crowded morning said afterwards that he felt as if he had been caught up in a strong draft like a wind-blown leaf. In the Roosevelt regime calling on the President was not hedged about with much ceremony. All Senators and Representatives were welcome every morning between 10 and 12 o'clock. And before he went to lunch Mr. Roosevelt used to clear up everybody in the ante-room, no matter how crowded it was. Unless he was peculiarly interested in the subject under discussion, Mr. Roosevelt did not allow any of his callers much time. Most of them had to be content with a handshake and a smile. In a great number of instances, that is all they had come for, and they went away happy.

Mr. Taft tried to follow Mr. Roosevelt's example and see everybody, but he did not have the terminal facilities. Once they got in to him visitors stuck to Mr. Taft like cattle burrs to a cow's tail. Mr. Taft was a patient listener, and his visitors took advantage of him. In his Administration, if one had an appointment with the President at 10.30 it was usually pretty safe to show up at the White House shortly before noon. Then the chance was that you wouldn't have to wait more than half an hour. Mr. Taft consistently "ran behind his schedule." His three secretaries, one after another, tried in vain to break him of this habit. Sometimes they would come into Mr. Taft's office when some visitor had finished his business and dropped into the story-telling stage and try to "show" him away in the various ways that secretaries have. If Mr. Taft found out what was going on he would usually fly to the rescue. Usually this forcing process was tried when the ante-rooms were congested with visitors who had definite appointments at a definite hour. Mr. Taft was always too good-natured. Once a visitor had access to him he could be sure of almost unlimited time. Getting in was the trouble, and getting in at the time appointed was a thing virtually unknown.

Mr. Wilson has a system all his own. It is unlike that of either of his predecessors. People say he is inaccessible, and so he is to persons who have no claim on his time. He guards his working hours and does not minutes to those who can prove they have a claim to them. Senators and Representatives do not have to tell their business to Mr. Wilson's secretary when they ask for an appointment, but everybody else does. Then the request for an appointment is laid before the President and he approves it or not, as he sees fit. The President virtually never sees anybody except by appointment and his appointment lists show all the persons he does see. Therefore it is easy to determine the measure of Mr. Wilson's accessibility.

President Wilson does not make any engagements on Saturdays. He reserves that day for his holiday. He comes over from the White House to the executive office every morning about 9.30 o'clock. He spends half an hour with his secretary, looking at the morning's mail at 10 o'clock precisely. He begins to receive visitors by appointment. On his desk is a typewritten card showing his list of appointments for the day; carbon copies are on the desks of his secretaries, and another is posted in the outer waiting room. Any who choose may come in and see with whom the President is talking. These appointments are seldom longer than 15 minutes each; rarely they run to half an hour.

The caller is supposed to present himself promptly on time, and to terminate his visit on the moment so that the next man on the list may not be kept waiting. The President usually indicates by some gesture or slight movement when the appointment has come to an end. There is a little clock before him on his desk. The last appointment invariably comes to an end at 1 o'clock, when the President goes to lunch. He is back in his office at 2 o'clock, or, at the latest, 2.30. Usually he has one appointment after lunch and then goes out to play golf. Probably twice or three times a month the President makes an appointment in the evening. These evening appointments, however, are made on his own initiative and not by solicitation.

President Wilson gives only two days each week to general appointments. He follows a strict routine. To begin with, Tuesdays and Fridays are given over to Cabinet meetings and appointments with members of the Cabinet. Wednesdays is reserved for conferences with members and committees of Congress having in hand pending legislation in which the President is directly interested, and as the President does not come to his office on Saturdays, that leaves only Mondays and Thursdays for the run of visitors. The President would not be enabled to see so many visitors as he does if he did not strictly economize his time and keep each of his callers within the limits allotted to them.

Here is a tip that may prove useful. If you have some matter of business to present to the President and obtain an appointment, get your little speech well prepared, compress it into the compactest and most succinct form, make it clear and simple and straightforward. Once you have said it to the President, don't expect and don't attempt to explain it. If it is coherent, he will understand you, and he detests above all things having things repeated by way of explanation. Then the wadding in your gun tightly and shoot. You'll be sure to get a reaction. The President rather fancies himself as one who can understand the English language. He said once that he could almost count on the fingers of one hand all the persons who had come to him with their business well prepared in their own minds.

An experienced traveler once said that you could always be sure of two things at Selma Ala-day and night. Doing business with the President these days offers almost the same assurance of fixity of program and regularity. He has his own ways and he follows them. If you don't like them, it is of no use complaining so far as his accessibility is concerned, he is accessible to those who get in and inaccessible to those who are kept out. Could anything be fairer than that?—E. G. L. in New York Evening Post.

The rate fixed varies from 3c per hundred pounds for five miles or less to 5 1/2c at fifty miles, 7 1/2c at one hundred miles, 10 1/2c at two hundred miles and 11 1/2c at three hundred miles.

BURGLARS MAKE RICH HAUL

Boston, April 6.—Several thousand dollars was secured by three men who entered the department store of Timothy Smith and Co., in Roxbury last night, bound and gagged, two watchmen and blew open the safe. The burglary was not discovered until early today, when one of the watchmen, James Mellerup, managed to free him self and give the alarm. When the police arrived, the burglars had disappeared. According to the story told by the other watchman, Larz Mortensen, he opened a side door late in the evening in response to a knock. A man hit him over the head with a revolver and knocked him senseless. When he recovered consciousness he found that he was handcuffed, gagged and tied to a post. He saw the man admit two companions.

Mellerup arrived an hour later to relieve Mortensen. The three men seized him, pushed a gag into his mouth and bound him to another post

ENGLISH SUFFRAGETTES STILL STRONG AND HEALTHY

London, April 6.—"General" Mrs. Flora Drummond, the militant suffragette, shirked so loudly when she was arraigned today at the police court in connection with the suffragette disturbances at Hyde Park, on Saturday that she had to be forcibly removed. She would not allow either the magistrates or the prosecuting attorney to enter an audible word. When Mrs. Drummond entered the prisoner's enclosure she shouted at the top of her voice that she would not permit anyone but herself to speak, because, she said, the magistrates and the police courts were doing the dirty work of Premier Asquith. She then proceeded to bombard the court, with volleys of verbal shrapnel until she was carried out by wardens. The magistrate stated that he would hear the case later in the day.

Militant Bomb in Church

An attempt to set fire to the famous Church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, in Trafalgar square, was made by suffragettes last night. A bomb was used, and the ancient pews and two beautiful stained-glass windows were wrecked. How the bomb came to be left in the church is not certain. It is believed, however, that it was left under one of the seats during the evening service. One of the occupants of the damaged pew was a young woman, fashionably dressed, carrying a large muff. After the service she remained for a short time. It is believed that while kneeling she produced the bomb from her muff, set the mechanism going, and placed it beneath the seat.

The church was closed in the usual way, with everything apparently in perfect order. Exactly at 10.30 o'clock the sound of an explosion was heard, followed by the smashing of glass. A volume of smoke poured from the windows on the south side of the church, which were seen to be broken. An alarm of fire called the brigade which was on the spot within a few minutes. The church was entered, but for several moments it was impossible to discover what had happened, owing to the alarming volume of smoke. No flames were visible, however, and when the smoke partially cleared away it was possible to make an examination. The bomb was then discovered. It was a crude affair, made out of tin canister, wrapped in suffragette literature and American cloth. It included a clockwork device, timed to go off at 10.30, and performed the function with surprising accuracy. The fuse was a piece of candle part of which was not burned away. It was evidently intended to set the edifice on fire, for the infernal machine itself was too small to wreck any large portion of the church. Nevertheless, sufficient damage was caused to present a scene of ruin. Two pews were shattered two stained glass windows in the south wall were blown out two electric globes were smashed and the ceiling was slightly damaged. Part of the woodwork caught fire, but the flames were easily extinguished.

The Church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields was erected in 1726 by Gibbs on the site of an earlier church. It has a noble Greek portico and the tower and spire are 185 feet high. There is a bust of Gibbs in the church at the west end of the nave. Nell Gwynne, who died in 1787; Farquhar, the dramatist, who died in 1707; Boulton, the sculptor, who died in 1762, and James Smith, one of the authors of "Rejected Addresses" who died in 1838, were buried in the churchyard.

Worked Good.

The machinery division of the survey ship Leonidas was given a dock trial on Monday and worked in a very satisfactory manner.

Immediate Work Needed

There is immediate need of work at the navy yard, and as it is, there is sure to be quite a big lay off this week. The future looks more promising than the present.

The Herald Hears

That the Vaughan street blacksmith is certainly some poet.
That the knight of the navy has a lot of them beat before they start at the game.

That all the saloon keepers of this city with one exception will ask for a renewal of their license.

That the Burdock Club will have to dig up a new camp for the summer.

That the display windows of the local stores show what can be done when the proprietors get busy.

That the same never looked better even during the holiday season.

That the old corner stone being removed by the public works department at the corner of Vaughan and Congress streets has been in place 111 years.

That gossip across the river is flying thick and fast.

That the announcement that Governor Felker will run for the United States senate has started something among the politicians.

That other surprises for the Democrats are on the way.

That the police of Concord have posted copies of the Marston tramp law at the various entrances to the city, and the city marshal gives notice that it is to be enforced to the letter in an effort to abate the tramp nuisance, which has become acute.

That the pension bureau shows that $4,557,559.82 has been paid out on account of pensions. Of this sum the Civil war pensions amounted to $4,- 294,596,944.47.

That this state had on June 30, 1913,
6,560 pensioners.

That $1,332,884.80 was paid them by the government during the fiscal year.

That Edward D. Shaw of this city has been granted a patent on a metallic railway tie.

That fourteen Albanians who were enjoying a beer party in the early morning were arrested by the police at Biddeford on Sunday.

That the court collected $179.50 in fines for the booze fight.

That the city officials and the junk dealers are still at it.

That no ruling of a city government will ever be satisfactory to junk men as a whole.

That a good license fee and about six in the business would end some of this gross filth.

That the booking room and chief's office of the police department are in the hands of the painters.

GIRLS' CLUB NOTES.

There was a delightful musicale at the club rooms on Sunday afternoon.
Miss Katherine O'Leary sang, Miss Caroline Stevens, accompanist.

Refreshments of ices and cake were served. Miss Frances Wiggin was in charge.

The luncheon was held on Monday noon, twenty-one girls being up to lunch.

The gymnasium class is not as large as usual, due partly to Lent. Come girls, all come to gymnasium class next Monday evening.

Luncheon on Wednesday as usual.
Misses Elise Peyser and Ruth Laight-on will have charge.

The dressmaking class will be held Wednesday night.

Mrs. Harry Caswell, Mrs. Howard Roberts and Mrs. Richardson will assist Miss Goodwin to have charge of the class. Take advantage of this, girls, and make a summer dress. Bring a Butterick pattern and material.

Thursday evening the Millinery and Embroidery classes will be conducted.
Make your own Spring Hat!

DROWNED AT NEWMARKET

Body of Unknown Man Found in River on Monday Afternoon

Medical Referee Andrew B. Sherburne was called to Newmarket on Monday afternoon to view the body of an unknown man found drowned in the river. The man was about 33 years old, poorly dressed and had been in the water for some length of time. It is believed that the man was a tramp. There was nothing about the body to indicate that death was otherwise than accidental.

ARRESTED FOR THEFT.

Charles Emery Charged With the Alleged Larceny of Faucets.
